VISION & VALUES DAY

Our trust vision & values day is an event which reiterates the understanding of our purpose and goals we want to achieve within our schools. This year it falls on Monday the 9th of March with a bigger focus on our values as last year centred on our vision and future aspirations. We looked forward to what the day will hold and plan on making it a fun filled day with further details to be provided via each of the schools shortly.

PUPIL SENATE

Our pupil senate have been contributing massively in the recent meetings and have come up with several great ideas to prepare us for our trust vision & values day.

Mr Chester has recently taken over in leading the pupil senate and had this to say regarding his first meeting: "What a brilliant and bright group of students. I'm really looking forward to collaborating with everyone and contributing to our schools."

CEO REFLECTIONS

This month we have learnt about Elizabeth Fry, Mahatma Gandhi, Harriet Tubman, and Yoko Ono.

A member of our Central Team reads a book from a series of books called "Little People, Big Dreams" to teach the children about the great things that people do that demonstrates the rights of a child. It's also a great way for adults to learn more than just their story of being famous so we encourage you to take a look. Recordings of our readings can be found under the Our Community section of our website.

AMAZON WISHLIST

New items continue to be added to the wish lists, so if you wish to take a look and consider purchasing for the schools then we will continue to provide the links for each of the schools

A message from Dr. Faris

We have recently completed peer reviews across all our schools and are delighted with how well they are doing. These reviews allow leaders to learn from one another, share strong practice and ensure high standards for pupils across the Trust.

Our Trust exists to add value to schools, not to take control away from them. While we are accountable for standards, resources and pupil wellbeing, our role is to provide stability, expertise and a strong safety net. This support enables schools to focus on what matters most: excellent teaching, inclusive practice and meeting the needs of your children.

I aim for our schools to know they are supported, so that they feel confident to innovate, develop new ideas and continually improve, while still benefiting from shared systems, professional collaboration and collective oversight. When things go well, success rightly belongs to the school community, but it is underpinned by the Trust's shared support and partnership of all 3 of our schools. I am incredibly proud that every day our staff are in and out of one another's schools, sharing expertise, supporting colleagues and learning together for the benefit of our children.
