PUPIL SENATE MEETING

To start the year, our Pupil Senate had their first meeting which involved getting to meet each other properly and prepare their team for the busy year ahead. They also were introduced to our new Central Assistant Headteacher, Matthew Bird, who will be leading our Pupil Senate. The Pupil Senate gives our children a real voice, allowing them to actively shape decisions made around our schools and provide valuable insights on trust-wide improvements. The children also get the opportunity to help organise trust-wide events and embark on a trip to the Palace of Westminster. With the Trust Vision & Values day coming up next month, this meeting gave our Pupil Senate the chance to plan and prepare the main focus and activities as they will be leading the day.

VISION & VALUES DAY

Our first trust-wide event of the year is our Vision & Values day next month on the 21st of October. The day provides an opportunity for our 3 schools to meet with one another as well as strengthen our pupils' understanding of our purpose as a Multi-Academy Trust and the deeper meaning of our values. Preparation for this day has already begun and we are excited to end this half term with a successful day.

CEO REFLECTIONS

This month we have learnt about Mother Teresa, Yoko Ono, Anne Frank and Harriet Tubman.

A member of our Central Team reads a book from a series of books called "Little People, Big Dreams" to teach the children about the great things that people do that demonstrates the rights of a child. It's also a great way for adults to learn more than just their story of being famous so we encourage you to take a look. Recordings of our readings can be found under the Our Community section of our website.

A message from Dr. Faris

A warm welcome back to our returning families, and a very special welcome to those joining our trust for the first time. We're delighted you're here.

For families new to academy trusts: a Multi-Academy Trust takes on the duties once held by Local Authorities, providing governance, compliance and oversight so our schools can focus on what matters most, teaching and learning. But we do things differently. Our HQ exists to strengthen our schools, not run them from the centre. We provide high-quality training, mental health support, coaching and shared services that individual schools could never afford alone. We don't impose a single blueprint or strip away the character that makes North Crescent, Rayleigh and Wyburns each wonderfully distinct. Autonomy sits at the heart of our model: we trust our heads to lead, and we standardise only where it safeguards children or strengthens our shared vision.

What truly sets us apart is our belief that all three of our values must live together at once. A pioneering idea that isn't ethical isn't one of ours; an act of kindness done only for praise isn't either. We hold all three, Altruistic, Pioneering and Ethical, in every decision, from how we treat one another to how we spend every pound. Our shared moral compass is the UNICEF Rights of the Child, woven through everything we do.

But values only matter when children can see and feel them, so here are some of the tangible things your child will experience across the year:

Weekly CEO Assemblies: Each week, pupils learn about a Courageous Advocate: a real, diverse role model whose life champions one of the UN Rights of the Child. Children reflect, sing, and give one another shout-outs and tokens.

Pro-Social Rewards: Children earn tokens for genuine acts of kindness and choose which cause their token supports. When a class fills its box, the whole key stage carries out the reward together, from litter picking to reading with younger children, so kindness becomes a shared responsibility.

Rites of Passage: Milestones that build identity and confidence, including our annual Vision and Values Day, the Pupil Senate (giving children a real voice), CEO for the Day for Year 6, our Year 5 Careers Day, and Year 6 team-building throughout the year.

Together, these tie our pupils, past, present and future, into one community across North Crescent, Rayleigh and Wyburns, giving every child a shared language for kindness, ambition and honesty, and a genuine sense that they can shape the world around them.

This is how we prepare your child for the world that awaits, as an altruistic, pioneering and ethical young person. Here's to a wonderful year ahead.

Amazon Wishlists

New items continue to be added to the wish lists, so if you wish to take a look and consider purchasing for the schools then we will continue to provide the links for each of the schools
